THE THEATER.

New National Theater.

For the second time within the year Maxine Elliott appeared at the National Theater last night in "Her Own Way," a play from the prolific pen of Clyde Fitch, and from the reception accorded by the large and distinguished audience present Miss Elliott may have her own way in Washington for a long time to come. The play throughout shows the handiwork of a skilled dramatist, and aside from its peculiar adaptability as a vehicle for Miss Elliott's methods is worthy of praise. Miss Elliott as Georglana Carley, an "old maid nearly thirty," has a role that fits her like a glove. With her wonderful beauty, her moods delightful-iy feminine and femininely delightful, her sympathetic voice and infectious laughter, her grace and the little womanly mannerisms she employs for the ensnaring of her backward lover and her audience she manages to create a human and intensely interesting stage personality.

R. C. Herz, as Steven Carley, Georgiana's speculating, stock-mad brother, had a trying and unsympathetic role, and by clever work managed to make it stand out prominently. James Carew, who succeeded Wil-liam Courtleigh as Sam Coast, the millionaire who thinks his money will buy any-thing, including Georgiana, interpreted the rather improbable role in a very probable manner. Fanny Addison Pitt, as the stepmother with the changeable hair; Nellie Thorne, as the society-struck sister-in-law, and Georgie Lawrence, as the lady hair-dresser with remarkable conversational powers, were excellent. A matinee will be given on Friday afternoon.

Columbia Theater.

"The Sultan of Sulu" maintains its hold on public favor, though comedians and prima donnas may come and go. It was given last night as the opening performance of a week's engagement at the Columbia Theater. The sovereign Ki-ram has many humorous moments and the music has lost none of its rythmic charm. The satire of the story is far from being stale, and the humor of the lyrics compensates for what they may lack in rhetoric elegance. In the cast Fred Frear holds his old-time part of the lugubrious private secretary without D. H. Mann of New York, past right worthy loss of interest, and Thomas Whiffen has grand templar, Saturday evening, the 4th succeeded to the title role. Nellie V. Nichols has the role of Chiquita, which she plays with vivacious effectiveness. Miss Nichols is a lyric soubrette of a unique style of brunette type and possessed of a contralto voice of extraordinary depth, Miss Nichols is quite the opposite of the customary musical comedienne, and the contrast is refreshing. Miss Maude K. Williams sings charmingly, and Walter A. Lawrence was not only vocally acceptable, but looked well in the calcium light. For-garty and O'Day contributed some occasional fancy steps, which were notable even in a company where dancing is a universal accomplishment.

Lafayette Opera House.

"Busy Izzy," now an old friend of Washington theater-goers, has returned to this city and is holding forth as the inauguration week attraction at the Lafavette Opera House. This is "Busy Izzy's" third annual visit to the national capital. The company, for the most part, is the original one, and the entertainment has undergone very few changes since the first presentation. An adequate idea of the nature of the work may be gleaned from the program announcement that "Busy Izzy" was written "by Jingo," and that the music is "by Golly." George Sidney continues to interpret the title role, his principal assistants being Fred Wyckoff, Charles Lomier, Harry Humphreys, William Maussey, Car-rie Webber and Maud Campbell. The production last evening served as the fourth annual benefit of Washington Aerie, No. 125. Fraternal Order of Eagles, and even standing room was at a premium.

An entertaining bill is offered the patrons of Chase's. A mirth-provoking farce, "The Boy Next Door," proves one of the most pleasing features of the bill. In this act George Felix introduces comedy and shows to advantage as an acrobat. He is assisted by the two Barrys, Lydia Barry winning applause with several catchy songs. Greene and Warner score with "Babes in the Jungle." The stage setting for this piece Jungle." The stage setting for this piece is cleverly arranged. Several popular songs were received with applause. Madge Fox entertains with a series of songs. James Harrigan keeps the audience in good humor with several dozen parodies and some clever jugglery. Kartelli pleased with several daring feats on the slack wire. Thomas J. Ryan and Mary Richfield appear in Will Creese's sketch "Mag Haggerty's Father." Cressy's sketch "Mag Haggerty's Father."
Elmer Tenley contributes a monologue, The vitagraph pictures of "A Parisian Romance" closed the program. A pleasing feature of the present week's performance is the musical program of patriotic selections by the orchestra under the leadership of W. J. Kerngood.

Academy of Music. A little more than the average amount of approval was given "His Last Dollar" at the Academy of Music last evening. Eleanor Montell as Eleanor Downes, the girl from Kentucky, scored a pronounced hit and was generally accorded first place in the cast, although David Higgins, who, with Baldwin G. Cooke, wrote the play, made a close second in the race to capture the interest of the large audience. The melodrama is not new to local theatergoers, but the story of the love of a rough Kentuckian, who has risen to be a millionaire by living the life of a cowboy, foiled against the malicious amours of a schemer, who tries to ruin him, and all the other interesting features of the play, including the horse racing, were amply suffi-cient to claim fresh interest.

Kernan's Lyceum Theater.

The Brigadiers' Burlesque Company is this week's attraction at Kernan's Lyceum Theater. A sort of farce-comedy, entitled "The Wise Guy," with Edmund Hayes in the title role, is presented in two acts with pleasing specialties.

clerk in the Treasury Department, whose death occurred Friday at George Washington

University Hospital, were interred yesterday services had been held at the residence of his parents in that town. The body was taken home Friday evening, accompanied by his mother and his brother, William E.

Mr. Chandler was twenty-two years of age. He was a native of Scottsburg, and came to this city only several years ago.

For a time he held the position of assistant statistician in the office of the auditor of the Southern Railway Company, resigning about two years ago to enter the government service. He was assigned to duty at the Norfolk navy yard and six months ago obtained a transfer to the Treasury Department in Washington. Since that time he was an attache in the office of United States Treasurer Filis H. Rob-

of United States Treasurer Ellis H. Rob erts. He was one of the organizers of the Herma Vista Club of this city.

His mother, efather and one brother, Mr W. E. Chandler, of this city, survive him.
